Description

Fischer + Krämer Orgelbau was a German organ-building company founded in 1970 by organ builders Friedrich Wilhelm Fischer and Johannes Krämer in Endingen am Kaiserstuhl, Baden-Württemberg. The company specialized in the construction and restoration of organs. After the passing of Johannes Krämer, the business was continued by Georg Fischer under the name Fischer + Krämer Orgelbau GmbH from June 2004.

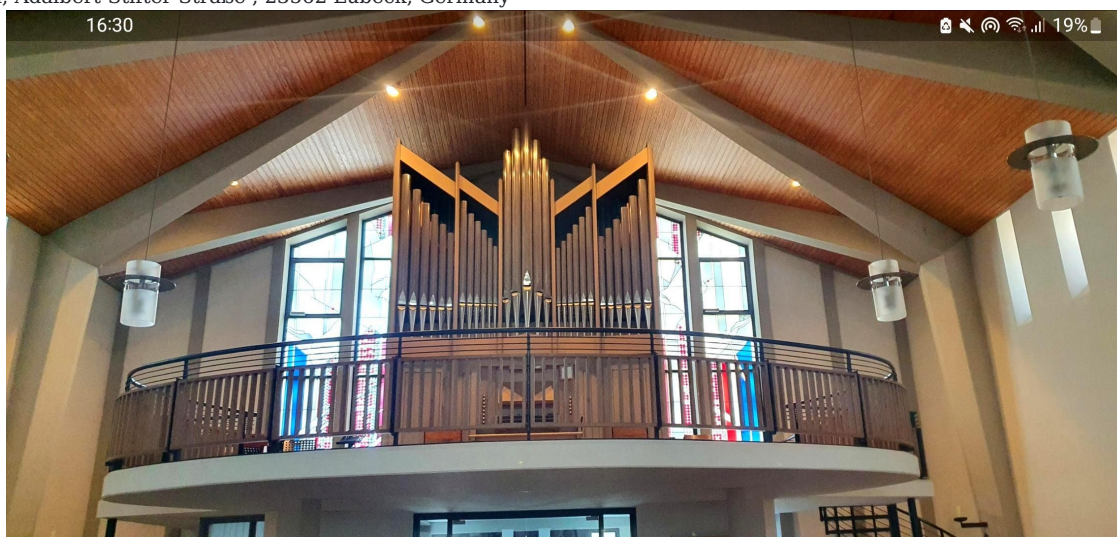

The company was well-regarded in the field of organ building, but in 2019, it began the process of liquidation, marking the end of its operations. Fischer + Krämer Orgelbau left behind a legacy of craftsmanship and numerous completed organ projects.

Description

The pipe organ was constructed by Fischer & Krämer in 1999. Unfortunately, the old church was completely burned down due to arson on May 25, 1997. The new church was subsequently built in 1999 and this led to the installation of the new organ. The current church was re-dedicated on May 23, 1999.
