Description

The organ was constructed by Stefan Truszczyński in 1956. It went through different phases of development. During 1721/25, the organ was built by Casparini. Then, in 1914, a new one was created after the old organ was destroyed, equipped with 13 registers. The modern version of the organ we see today was built in 1956. In 2011/12, the organ was expanded and modernized. It's also possible to control the choir organ located in the presbytery from the main organ's console. This expansion and modernization was carried out by Zdzisław Mollin in 2011/12.
